

PRACTICE GUIDE

FaceYoguez

Pre & Post Practice Guide

How to prepare, practise, and recover with care

EVERY SESSION, START TO FINISH · FACEYOGUEZ

A simple ritual to bookend every session — so each practice is calm, safe, and effective from the first breath to the last.

PHASE ONE

Before Your Practice

1 Start with clean hands

Wash your hands before touching your face — especially for massage, fascia work, or exercises involving direct skin contact.

2 Prepare your skin

Ideally, practise on a clean face. If you're practising at night, cleanse off makeup, sunscreen, pollution, and excess product first.

For gliding or massage work, apply the recommended amount of facial oil or slip product so you're not dragging dry skin. You don't need slip for every exercise — follow the instructions for your particular routine.

3 Set up your posture

- Sit or stand comfortably.
- Keep your feet supported when seated.
- Allow your shoulders to relax.
- Avoid collapsing through your chest or over-arching your lower back.
- Keep your head comfortably aligned rather than pushing your chin forward.
- Position your screen around eye level when following a video.

Reference — FaceYoga Setup Guide

4 Remove unnecessary tension

Before beginning, quickly scan through:

Jaw → Tongue → Forehead → Eyes → Shoulders → Breath

You don't want to begin a facial exercise while already unconsciously clenching.

5 Breathe

Take a few comfortable breaths before starting. Encourage gentle nasal breathing when it feels comfortable and appropriate, rather than aggressively forcing your mouth closed.

6

Follow your schedule

Don't add additional exercises simply because you have extra time.

7

Quick body check-in

Let this become a lovely FaceYoguez ritual — ask yourself, “How do I feel today?”

Notice any unusual jaw tension, headache, neck pain, facial sensitivity, dizziness, illness, skin irritation, or anything noticeably different from your usual baseline. If something feels significantly different, modify or pause according to your guidance rather than blindly completing the routine.

FACEYOGUEZ 30-SECOND PRE-PRACTICE CHECK

Clean hands

Prepared skin

Comfortable posture

Jaw relaxed

Shoulders relaxed

Breathing comfortably

Correct routine & dosage open

Now you're ready to begin. 🌸

PHASE TWO

During Your Practice

THE 5 FACEYOGUEZ PRACTICE RULES

Breathe

Don't clench

Don't rush

Don't force

Don't chase sensation

- Use only the pressure instructed.
- Keep unnecessary facial tension relaxed.
- Avoid aggressive skin pulling.
- Keep your neck and shoulders comfortable.
- Use a mirror initially when a technique requires visual feedback.
- Stop if you experience sharp pain or concerning symptoms.

“More sensation ≠ better results.”

We're looking for precision and control — not maximum effort. Gentle, accurate work is what creates lasting change.

PHASE THREE

After Your Practice

1 Give your face a moment to settle

Don't immediately start additional facial exercises because your face "doesn't feel worked enough."

2 Cleanse appropriately

If you've used facial oil or another massage/slip product that isn't meant to stay on your skin, gently cleanse it off after practice. Avoid aggressive scrubbing. Then continue with your normal skincare routine.

3 Apply your skincare

Your normal routine can follow:

Cleanse › Hydrate / treat › Moisturize › SPF (daytime)

4 Observe, don't obsess

Notice how your face and body feel after the session:

- Relaxed or tense?
- Any jaw discomfort?
- Any headache?
- Any unusual fatigue?
- Did one side feel different?
- Was an exercise difficult to coordinate?

5 Don't repeatedly check your face

Avoid repeatedly checking your face in the mirror right after practice, or judging your progress session-to-session. Visible progress is best assessed using standardized progress photos over time — not minute-to-minute changes.

Bookend every session with care — prepare gently, practise mindfully, recover kindly. 🌸

FACEYOGUEZ